

Public Lecture

Grief, Resilience and Hope amid the Pandemic

Speaker:

Prof. Charlotte Summers

Professor of Intensive Care Medicine,
University of Cambridge & Addenbrooke's Hospital

20th July 2022, 5.30–6.30pm BST

Runcie Room (and Online on Zoom)
Faculty of Divinity, University of Cambridge.
Followed by refreshments.

All welcome. Register to join: please email centre@cccw.cam.ac.uk

Prof Summers is the University Professor of Intensive Care Medicine, University of Cambridge. She was the UK's first NIHR Clinical Lecturer in Intensive Care Medicine, and awarded both a Fulbright All-disciplines Scholar Award and a Wellcome Trust Fellowship for Postdoctoral Clinician Scientists to undertake research at the University of California, San Francisco. She returned to Cambridge in 2015, where she currently co-leads the Peri-operative, Acute, Critical Care and Emergency medicine (PACE) Section of the Department of Medicine alongside being the Clinical School's Director of Clinical Academic Training. She is a member of the UK-COVID Therapeutic Advisory Panel and Chief Investigator of HEAL-COVID, the national Urgent Public Health platform clinical trial aiming to find drug therapies to improve the longer-term clinical outcomes of people hospitalised with COVID-19.

This lecture is open to all and forms part of the inaugural week-long Summer Institute in Cambridge jointly organised by the Cambridge Centre for Christianity Worldwide, Theological education in the Anglican Communion and the Rose Castle Foundation.

During the week a global group of students, educators, researchers and others will be focussing on how the C-19 pandemic is impacting churches and their communities, locally and worldwide, and how they are responding.

The lecture promises to be a fascinating reflection from the University of Cambridge and Addenbrookes' clinician and scientist at the forefront of the local, national and international effort to beat Covid-19.

Please do join us – come and be inspired and challenged after this very difficult time.